1. Introduction

This is Nomios' Employee Privacy Statement, it provides information on the processing of personal data of the Employees of Intragen Germany GmbH which will, for the purposes of this Employee Privacy Statement, be referred to as ("Nomios"). Intragen Germany GmbH is based at Europadamm 4, 42460 Neuss, Germany.

This Employee Privacy Statement may be amended over time. You are advised to regularly review the Privacy Statement for possible changes but we will ensure that you will be updated of any significant changes that impact your position. We use personal information for various purposes, as described in detail below.

2. When does this Employee Privacy Statement apply?

2.1. Personal data

Personal data is all information that identifies or can identify a living individual, the data subject. If the information allows you to tell who someone is, or in combination with other information allows you to do so, it is considered personal data. This includes obvious identifiers like a name, phone number, email address, home address, date of birth, and photos, but it also includes less obvious identifiers such as bank account numbers, Employee numbers, and technical identifiers (such as an IP address or device ID). Even without a name, if the information can identify a specific individual, it is considered personal data. Some categories of personal data are considered more sensitive than others and require a higher level of protection. These are called “special categories of personal data” and include personal data about an individual’s racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, trade union membership, health, sexual life or orientation or include genetic or biometric data used for the purpose of uniquely identifying a natural person.

During your course as an Employee of Nomios, we will collect and process various types of personal data of you. This Employee Privacy Statement explains what personal data is processed, for what purpose, and what third parties receive your personal data.

2.2. Processing of personal data of Employees

Under data protection law anything you do with personal data is considered processing. Processing is a very broad term that includes activities such as collecting, storing, using, sharing, sending, updating, correcting, deleting and destroying. Even if the personal data is at rest in some database, it is considered processing. This Employee Privacy Statement applies to Nomios’ processing of personal data of all its (former) Employees, temporary workers working under supervision of Nomios (for example interns and trainees), (former) executives and non-executive directors of Nomios, or (former) members of the supervisory board or similar body to Nomios (who will, after this, be referred to as the "Employees" and the agreements governing the relationship with Nomios - which include the agreements for the provision of services - as "Employment Contracts").

2.3. Role Nomios

Nomios is the controller for the processing of all personal data of you, as described in this Employee Privacy Statement. Nomios determines how your personal data is processed, and for what purpose.

3. For which purposes do we process your personal data?

Nomios may process your data for various purposes, all of which have been set out below. This may be personal data that you provided to us explicitly, but also personal data that we collected or generated ourselves. The legal basis of the processing activities as indicated below may either be the necessity for the performance of Nomios' obligations under the employment agreement, the necessary legitimate business purposes of Nomios, or legal obligations imposed on Nomios (by, for example, the Tax Authority). In exceptional cases we may ask you for consent for the processing of your personal data, such as for the organisational directory on the HRM system.

Exceptions to the retention periods set out below may apply in case the personal data is required for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

3.1. Recruitment

3.1.1. Purpose

If you contact one of our recruiters, was referenced by a Nomios Employee, or apply directly for a job, we process the personal data you provide to us during the application process in our recruitment database. We use the personal data in this database to conclude, and communicate with you during, the recruitment process.

3.1.2. Personal data

For this purpose, we process your: address, certification, CV, date of birth, email address (personal), education, employment history, experience, gender, interview notes, language, motivation, name (first names, last names), nationality, permits, phone number (personal), salary expectations, possible start date.

3.1.3. Retention

For this purpose, we retain your personal data until six (6) months after the application process has been finalised. After this period, your personal data is deleted from our systems. If you have become an Employee, your personal data is partially transferred to our Human Resource Management ("HRM") system to be used for the commencement of your employment. The personal data not necessary for the commencement of your employment is deleted from our systems.

3.2. Onboarding

3.2.1. Purpose

Once we offer you a position at Nomios, we will process your personal data to prepare and conclude your employment agreement, and prepare for the commencement of your employment such as preparing hardware and software. We will store your personal data in our internal systems, including our HRM.

3.10.3. Retention

For this purpose, we retain your personal data until three (3) years after your employment has ended.

3.11. Compliance, investigations, and disciplinary actions

3.11.1. Purpose

Nomios may, based on a complaint or another reasonable ground for suspicion, monitor general Employee activities, email and network use, and contents of a mailbox for specific purposes such as to check compliance with Nomios' policies and regulations (including, but not limited to the Code of Conduct and the Data Protection and Privacy Policies). If an Employee is suspected of behaviour or actions that are not compliant with Nomios' policies and regulations. Nomios could instigate an internal investigation and generate and process additional personal data. We could, for example, instigate such an investigation in the case of a prohibited transfer of any of Nomios' trade secrets, confidential information, intellectual property or knowhow, fraud or if we suspect an Employee to be the origin of any virus, spam or intrusion in our systems or network. Any investigative action will be reviewed by the Legal department and/or the DPO on proportionality and subsidiarity. Nomios will take additional security measures such as the four-eye principle. If the investigation shows non-compliance of the Employee, Nomios may take disciplinary actions to such Employee.

3.11.2. Personal data

For this purpose, we process your: access rights, email address (work), email/chat contents, location data (pinging from cell towers/phone tracking), log in details (username/password), logs (such as time, date and contents of internet usage, documents, chats, emails, (operating) software version, browser, network details), name (first names, last names), phone number (work), retained files (such as documents or other files saved on storage devices (USB sticks, portable hard drives, OneDrive (personal and shared), printed files) and data in back-ups, social media page (personal), technical identifiers (such as device numbers, serial numbers, asset tag, mac addresses, IP addresses, object ID, endpoint names).

For this purpose, we retain warning letters for one (1) year after the calendar year the employment has ended. Any other personal data is kept for three (3) years after the calendar year the employment has ended.

3.12. Business continuity measures

3.12.1. Purpose

When an Employee leaves Nomios, or is otherwise unable to access or provide access to emails, files, or devices containing information related to Nomios' business, Nomios may take measures to ensure business continuity. Such measures may include accessing the Employee's business device or email, or enabling automatic forwarding of emails to a designated colleague. Prior to taking any such measures, Nomios will assess whether our legitimate interest in ensuring business continuity outweighs the interests, rights, and freedoms of the Employee. Any legitimate interest assessment is reviewed by the Legal department and/or the DPO on proportionality and subsidiarity. Nomios will take additional security measures such as the four-eye principle, and access will be limited to what is strictly necessary.

3.12.2. Personal data

For this purpose, we process your: access rights, email address (work), email/chat contents, log in details (username/password), logs (such as time, date and contents of internet usage, documents, chats, emails, name (first names, last names), phone number (work), retained files (such as documents or other files saved on storage devices (USB sticks, portable hard drives, OneDrive (personal and shared), printed files) and data in back-ups, technical identifiers (such as device numbers, serial numbers, asset tag, mac addresses, IP addresses, object ID, endpoint names).

3.12.3. Retention

For this purpose, access is kept to a strictly necessary minimum, both in duration and in size. Only those business documents and/or emails are retained which are required to ensure Nomios' business continuity.

3.13. Organisational directory

3.13.1. Purpose

To improve internal relationships and allow Employees to look up their colleague's profile in the HRM system. Uploading a photo into the HRM system is optional and up to the choice of the Employee.

3.13.2. Personal data

For this purpose, we process your: email address (work), employer, function, name (first names, last names), picture, phone number (work), work location.

3.13.3. Retention

For this purpose, we retain your personal data for as long as you work at Nomios.

3.14. Business analysis and reporting

3.14.1. Purpose

To be able to prepare and perform management reporting and analysis. For example, we provide business reports to the board of directors on a regular basis, may conduct Employee surveys to learn more about your views and opinions in preparation of our management reporting. We also process your personal data in the context of mergers, acquisitions and divestitures and to manage such transactions

3.14.2. Personal data

For this purpose, we process your: contract time, department, entity, FTE, function, gender, leave date, name (first names, last names), opinions, job title, start date, type of contract, views, worked hours.

3.14.3. Retention

For this purpose, the department responsible for this processing activity retains your personal data for this purpose until the analysis and/or report has been completed, after which the personal data is deleted.

3.15. Offboarding

3.15.1. Purpose

To manage the administrative, contractual, security, and knowledge transfer aspects of Employee departures, including return of company assets, revocation of access, final payments, and exit documentation.

3.15.2. Personal data

For this purpose, we process your: address, bank account number, benefits (bonus, company car, allowances, etc.), social security number, date of birth, docs related to return of assets, email address (personal), end date, exit interview notes, final payroll and benefits information, job title, motivation, name (first names, last names), passport/id number, permits, phone number (personal), salary.

3.15.3. Retention

For this purpose, we retain your personal data for the retention periods set out above. Any termination documentation is retained for three (3) years after your employment has ended.

4. Who has access to your personal data?

4.1. Access to your personal data within Nomios

All Nomios Employees that have an Active Directory account have access to your public Nomios profile in the HRM system and the personal data you have made publicly available there (which will list your name, function, birthday and professional contact details). Besides access by the HR department, non-public personal data can be accessed by relevant Nomios departments, but only to the extent necessary to fulfil their respective tasks. Without prior written authorization of Nomios, Employees and independent contractors of Nomios shall not, directly or indirectly, access, use for any purpose, disclose to anyone, publish, exploit, take, copy, alter, destroy, or remove from the offices of Nomios, nor solicit, allow or assist another person or entity to access, use, disclose, publish, exploit, take, copy, alter, destroy or remove from the offices of Nomios, any personal data or part thereof of another Employee or job applicant of Nomios, except: (i) as permitted in the proper performance of their duties for Nomios; (ii) as permitted in the ordinary course of Nomios' business for legitimate business purposes; or (iii) as otherwise required by applicable laws and/or regulations.

4.2. Access to your personal data by third parties

The following third parties have access to your personal data, where relevant, for the provisioning of their products or services to Nomios:

- Governmental organisations
- Banks
- Insurance companies (including Pension providers)
- IT suppliers
- Collection agencies
- Accountants
- Company Doctors

In the event such third parties are given access to your personal data, we will take the required contractual, technical and organisational measures to ensure that your personal data are only processed to the extent that such processing is necessary and that these third parties will only process your personal data in accordance with applicable (local) law.

4.3. The use of your personal data by data processors

When a third party processes your personal data solely following Nomios' instructions, it will act as a data processor. We enter into a data processing agreements with such processors which set out the conditions on which the processing of personal data by the processor is allowed. In this agreement we include obligations to ensure that your personal data are processed by the processor based solely on Nomios' instructions and for the purposes set out by Nomios.

4.4. International Data Transfer

Our aim is to process your personal data within the European Economic Area ("EEA"). There may, however, be occasions when we need to transfer your personal information outside of the EEA to a country that is not regarded under European Law as providing the same level of data protection as the country in which Nomios is based. In these circumstances we will take appropriate steps to ensure that your personal data is adequately protected. Typically, such steps include carrying out a data transfer impact assessment, security reviews of the recipients, and putting in place contracts with such recipients which include the Standard Contractual Clauses (SCCs) to ensure they employ the same or similar appropriate technical and organisational measures as Nomios, so your data is adequately protected. For more information on the appropriate safeguards in place, please contact us at the contact details below.

5. How is your personal data secured?

At Nomios, we apply a combination of technical and organizational measures to protect your personal data against loss, theft or other unlawful use. The technical measures include implementing access controls, encryption and firewalls. Furthermore, we take organisational measures such as training all Employees to handle your personal data responsibly, continuously monitor our systems to prevent unauthorized access, and audit our compliance with the GDPR.

In case of a data breach, we will notify you promptly if it is likely to result in a high risk to your rights or freedoms, as required by law.

6. What rights do you have regarding your personal data?

Under the GDPR, you have the following rights:

Right of access: you may request information about the processing and a copy of the personal data we process of you.
Right to rectification: you may request us to correct inaccurate or complete incomplete personal data of you.

Right to erasure: you may request the erasure of your personal data in certain cases, such as when the personal data are no longer necessary for the purpose or when you have objected to the processing.
Right to restriction of processing: you may request us to restrict the processing of your personal data in certain cases, such as when you contest the accuracy of the personal data or have objected to the processing.
Right to data portability: you may request your data in a machine-readable format for transfer to another provider in the case the processing is based on consent or the performance of a contract, and the processing is carried out by automated means.
Right to object: you may object to the processing of your personal data based on legitimate interests such as direct marketing. We shall no longer process the personal data unless there is a compelling legitimate ground to do so, which overrides your interest, rights and freedoms, or for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.
Right to withdraw consent: The right to withdraw the consent you have given at any time. When you have withdrawn your consent, we will not process your personal data any further. This does not affect the lawfulness of the prior processing during which your consent was not yet withdrawn.

To exercise these rights, you can submit your request through the dedicated Data Subject Request page on the Data Protection and Privacy SharePoint, or contact us using the contact details below. To ensure the security of your personal data, we may require proof of your identity. We will respond with the decision regarding your request within one month; however, this response may state that the response period is extended by a further two months if necessary, depending on the complexity of your request or the number of requests received.

7. Data Protection Officer

At Nomios, we have appointed a Data Protection Officer (DPO) to ensure compliance with data protection regulations, including the GDPR. The DPO oversees our data protection strategy, trains staff, conducts audits, ensures that your rights are respected, and that all data processing is conducted securely and in compliance with data protection legislation. The DPO serves as the point of contact for any privacy-related questions or concerns.

If you have any questions about this Employee Privacy Statement or wish to exercise your rights, you can contact our Data Protection Officer (DPO) at:

Intragen Germany GmbH
Europadamm 4
42460 Neuss
Germany
Tel: +49 2131 526478-0
Email: dataprotection@intragen.com

If your query is not adequately addressed, you may contact your local data protection authority, Landesbeauftragte für Datenschutz und Informationsfreiheit Nordrhein-Westfalen, to lodge a complaint.

8. Statement management

8.1. Statement Maintenance

All inquiries about this Employee Privacy Statement, including requests for exceptions or changes must be directed to the DPO via email [EMAIL LOCAL DPO].

8.2. Publication

This Employee Privacy Statement shall be available to all Employees through the Data Protection and Privacy SharePoint or via alternative means as deemed appropriate by the DPO.

8.3. Revisions

The DPO is responsible for the maintenance and accuracy of this Employee Privacy Statement. Once a year this Employee Privacy Statement is reviewed. Notice of significant revisions shall be provided to all Employees. Changes to this Employee Privacy Statement will come into force when published on the Data Protection and Privacy SharePoint.

This Employee Privacy Statement has been last revised as per 15 January 2026.
